Summary

The aim of this work was to create the first Estonian-language video materials supporting music notation teaching, based on other already widely used foreign language video teaching materials. In the written work, I looked at how great and useful the developmental impact of music teaching can be for young children and people in general, and how teaching materials that present lesson materials visually could be helpful, what visuals and designs have been implemented in existing teaching materials, and how widespread the use of video teaching materials is in primary school music teaching in Estonia.

In the practical part, I prepared several music notation teaching videos that were visually based on already existing materials, but used Estonian children's songs as the source material. In the future, I will upload them to YouTube so that music teachers across Estonia can use them in their teaching.